

3 Dawson Posts Still Left Open

Eight Nominations Received So Far; Deadline Today

The deadline for nominations will not be postponed again but will remain at 4 p.m. today, it was announced yesterday. In a last effort to have candidates nominated for the remaining posts of Vice-President of the Arts and Science Undergraduates Society, Chairman of the House Committee, and Chairman of the Canteen Committee, Mr. Hilliard pointed out that only two new nominations had been received. George Kozoriz for President of the Arts and Science Undergraduates Society, and S. W. Piper for Vice-President of the Engineering Undergraduates Society, making a total of only eight nominations. The rules for nominations remain the same and all remaining posts require at least fifteen signatures with each nomination. All students on the Dawson Campus have been asked once again to give active support in bringing in the remaining nominations. For the three remaining posts must be filled in order that the Students' Council should function at its best.

Dr. Flemming Gives Lecture To Pre-meds.

Academic record and personal qualifications are two of the more important points which Dr. Flemming, secretary of the medical faculty, discussed before over 150 pre-medical students last evening at the Medical building during his topic "Getting Into Medicine." Present facilities cannot be expanded and still maintain a high standard. Consequently only one applicant in eighteen is accepted. Regarding academic record he said that at least second class average must be obtained in subjects as outlined in the calendar. There is wide variety in the requirements, thus students who late in their choice decide upon medicine will not be penalized due to choice of subjects. He stressed that cultural as well as scientific training was essential. High intelligence, ability to get along with people, physical and mental health, mature judgment and ability to think for one's self were other essential traits discussed by Dr. Flemming relating to personal qualifications. These factors are important, he continued, because the study of medicine is a hard course and the work afterwards harder still. Applicants are judged by other criteria he explained, such as age, veteran or civilian student, whether or not the student has the necessary finance to carry him through his whole career. Dr. Flemming stressed the fact that every effort

Camera Club to Meet Thursday, in Union

The McGill Camera Club will hold its first meeting of the year this Thursday night at 8.00 p.m. in the Union Music Room. During the first hour, the history, aims and program of the club will be outlined and membership taken. The remainder of the evening will be spent in the Ballroom where the members will have a chance to click their shutters at a professional model (luscious blond). Prospective members would do well not to miss this excellent opportunity. All lighting equipment will be provided and set up. Only camera and tripod is needed. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Lewis Speaks At CCF Club Meet Tonight

Tonight at 8.30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom Mr. David Lewis, National Secretary of the CCF, will address a combined meeting and social of the McGill CCF Club. The meeting is open to all students who are interested in the aims and platform of the CCF.

DAVID LEWIS

Party and to members of the other political clubs on the campus.

Mr. Lewis has spoken to McGill students a number of times, the last occasion to the Political Science Club. He is himself a graduate of McGill, having received his B.A. here in the thirties. A resident of Montreal, Mr. Lewis entered McGill after having won first place in the provincial examinations. While still at McGill he served as Secretary of the old Montreal Labour Party. After receiving his bachelor's degree, Mr. Lewis entered the faculty of Law, but was awarded a Rhodes Scholarship and left for Oxford. While in England he had the remarkable honour of becoming the first Canadian president of the Oxford Union; he was also very prominent in the Oxford Labour Club.

In 1935 Mr. Lewis returned to Canada and practiced law for a number of years in Ottawa. He became Honorary Secretary of the CCF, and gave up his practice several years later to become secretary of the party on a full-time basis. Mr. Lewis is the author of many books and pamphlets, and has twice stood as candidate for the Dominion parliament. He is a profound student of socialist theory, and is well known as a brilliant orator and debater.

U.S. Scholarships Will Aid Student-exchange Program

In a two-day conference last week, prominent American educators, comprising President Truman's board of foreign scholarships, announced a proposal to spend $140,000,000 in scholarship grants to American students and teachers.

The money will be made available under terms of the Fulbright Act passed by Congress at its last session. Under this law, foreign countries that possess accumulated United States war surplus may purchase a portion of it in terms of "international scholarships." Restrictions, however have been placed upon the amount that may be secured.

EXCHANGE DIFFICULT

Since the grants are to be in the currency of the country involved, the advantages to foreign students will not be great. It is the question of foreign currency exchange that has worried many United States educators and government authorities. Students from other lands now find it difficult if not impossible to secure American dollars. Their governments are more concerned with converting their currency into dollars for much-needed food and machinery, rather than for cultural projects, no matter how great their ultimate importance. It is due to these difficulties that the number of foreign students entering the United States is one-half last year's figures. A grave danger exists, the educators warned, that America will lose her leadership in the field of scholarship exchange.

GOVERNMENT HOPEFUL

That the Fulbright law will help develop an outstanding program of scholarship exchange appears evident. Those at the Washington meeting were optimistic at its potentialities and anxious to get the project under way. The role of the government, it was stressed, is primarily to facilitate, encourage, and supplement existing non-government organizations and institutions presently engaged in similar programmes.

Twenty-two nations of the world—including many of the major countries—are already negotiating with the American government regarding participation in the plan. It is to be hoped that this scheme will help build better relations between the countries of the world and at the same time be beneficial to students.

McGill Radio Workshop To Hold Meeting

The organizational meeting of the campus Radio Workshop will take place in the New Room of the Union at 7.30 p.m. tonight, secretary Malcolm Smith announces.

During this short session, registration will be held for all students interested in joining the Workshop and taking part in future recordings and broadcasts. Those who intend to attend the "School of Radio" lectures to be conducted by local professionals on October 27 and November 3, will also register.

Full details about the school will be given to the meeting and vice-president Ed Wener will outline plans for Workshop recordings and broadcasts to take place during the coming season. (Ed. Note: The Daily regrets its error in yesterday's edition stating that the above meeting was to be held last night.)

Engineers Win Debate Against R.V.C. Co-eds

"Engineers are after a WORKING girl," stated Collin Spenser, speaking on the winning team of the Inter-Faculty Debating League's first debate, held in the Engineering Building yesterday. Mr. Spenser and his colleague, Dave Townsend, went on to say that "a woman's place is in the home," and "what good is anthropology when you're cooking eggs for your husband."

R.V.C. students, Muriel Clarke and Joan Morrison, upheld the affirmative side of "Resolved that a college woman is better prepared for marriage than a working girl" by replying that "an educated man merely produces an educated individual, while an educated woman produces an educated family."

After the debaters had presented their various arguments, Roland La Prairie, a winner of the debating society's highest award, the Golden Key, judged the debate. La Prairie based his criticisms on the argument material introduced, for which both sides received an equal score, style of presentation, and rebuttal. The men had a slight lead over the women in these last two points. La Prairie suggested that the women had more confidence in their own arguments.

One of the highlights of the debate was an impromptu poll staged by the engineers. The married men of the audience were asked whether they had married college girls or business girls, to which the majority replied business girls. "Yes, but there are more working girls than there are college girls," was the comment from one female member of the audience.

Club Posters Being Moved Prematurely

Posters are being removed from the bulletin board near the Roddick Gates it was learned last night from sources in three different student organizations on the McGill Campus, thus wreaking havoc with attempts by these clubs to obtain publicity for their various activities. These posters have been ripped off the notice board before their allotted time has elapsed.

Complaints have come from Players Club, the C.C.F. Club and the Newman Club who have had posters removed by someone in the last few days.

The Players Club, according to President Alan Williams had placed a poster announcing the fact that there would be a meeting of the club yesterday in the Union. Apparently someone removed the poster some time yesterday morning, and thus put a possible check on the turnout.

The C.C.F. Club had a poster announcing Mr. David Lewis' lecture. It was removed yesterday morning also, according to the club's president Jon Wolfe.

Canada's Future

Boys Clubs Provide Activities For Youth's Leisure Time

By LIZ TURNER BONE

"Bringing out the best that is in them and bettering that best" is the avowed purpose of the agencies like the Griffintown Club. These community centres which include Triverty and University settlements, Griffintown and the Negro Community Centre do much more than merely keep youth off the street. It is their aim to provide satisfying leisure time activities. They are particularly interested in encouraging the young people to join into the group and become a living, giving factor in it.

Sports and team games with adequate instruction form a large part of these programs. Handicraft, cooking, sewing and carpentry are also popular and useful activities. These centres not only open their doors to the young, "Teen-agers have their own clubs, lectures and discussions as well as many social evenings of dancing. Mothers' clubs, sewing circles, and movies do much to add to the well-rounded community program.

Numerous Projects Summer recreation projects are numerous. Griffintown operates a day camp on Mount Royal, Camp Lewis, Oolahwan, the YWCA camp, and Camp Chapleau are all supported by welfare Federation. A pioneering job in supervised playgrounds has for many years been accomplished by a Red Feather Agency. Daily Vacation schools are another of their community services.

Legal Problems

Varsity Says Canada Needs New Engineers

At an open forum discussion held recently at Varsity Mr. E. P. Muntz, a consulting engineer, stated that the trend of employing young engineers in large and small industries in Canada is on the upswing.

Mr. Muntz said that our declining natural resources are demanding greater technical skill in industry, and that industry itself is only beginning to realize the benefit that engineers can be to it. He continued by saying: "Our economy is now based on a higher percentage of manufacturing and hence more engineers will be needed."

In conclusion, Mr. Muntz pointed out that the young engineer should take a job wherever there was work available. If he was ambitious and knew his work, he would have no trouble in gaining promotion in his field whether he was employed by a large industrial concern or a small one.

Mrs. Dunbar Made Advisor Players Club

Mrs. Joan Jackson Dunbar was introduced as the Honorary Advisor of the McGill Players Club in their first meeting held at the Union yesterday, and presided over by Allan Williams.

Mrs. Dunbar announced that casting for this season's two plays "Charles and Margaret" and "Riders to the Sea" would begin today. Mrs. Dunbar and Allan Portliff are available to those interested in trying out, in the Union basement at the hours of 12 noon-2 p.m., 5 p.m.-6 p.m., 7:30 p.m.-9 p.m.

Mrs. Dunbar was president of the Drama Club, as a student at McMaster. She attended the Massachusetts Summer Theatre, did radio advertising, and taught English at McGill while doing post graduate work there. She was also the first president of the Inter Varsity Drama League. The Players Club's three act production "George and Margaret" will be under her direction.

After three years of post war adjustment the Players Club has "pulled up its socks" and hopes to have a greater influence on McGill undergraduate life in the future. The new executive intend to function more as a club, and not only as a play-producing machine. They have planned an extensive programme which will include guest speakers who will talk on various aspects of play production at the meetings. The Club's activities are now under the discussion of the club itself, and will be announced later with the names of the speakers.

Third Annual A.C.S. Ball Scheduled For Currie Gym On Friday November 14

Economy Club Hears Talk By Keirstead

"The scope and method of political economy" was the topic of an address given by Professor Keirstead at the first meeting of the Political Economy Club held in the Grill Room of the McGill Union last night.

After being introduced by Kirk Sinclair, president of the club, Professor Keirstead prefaced his speech with the hope that the club would revert to the old tradition of professors being seen and not heard, as was the case 25 years ago when strict student participation was the rule.

Beginning his speech with the statement that it would be a criticism of the rather narrow definition of Economics imposed by Lionel Robbins, Professor Keirstead went on to stress the objective position of the economist who he claimed should not attempt to advocate definite policy, but to define areas of free decision.

Previous to the introduction of the main speaker, Professor Culliton, an old associate of Stephen Leacock, suggested that the name of the club should be changed to the "Stephen Leacock Political Economy Club." Acting upon this suggestion the motion was presented and carried by the members of the association to adopt this as the official name of the club.

Further business of the club was terminated when Bobby Falconer and Natalie Fochs were elected as social conveners for the new session. This marks the first election of women students to the executive of this organization.

Gerald Bursey, vice president of the club, thanked Professor Keirstead at the end of the address and the meeting was thrown open to discussion.

A New Precedent Set At N.Y. Tribune Forum

By AL TUNIS

New York, Oct. 21.—A precedent was set here today when over 50 students from various colleges in the United States and Canada, attending the 16th annual New York Herald Tribune Forum, gathered in the Waldorf-Astoria to hold their own 'Forum' on problems presently under discussion at the Tribune meeting.

Among the students attending the forum are Jack Ronson and Al Tunis, both from McGill University. They are the only two Canadian students in attendance. The other 600 scholars are from 130 universities spread over the United States.

Slave or Sovereign

Earlier today, students had listened to prominent religious and academic figures discussing the "Spiritual Contributions to the Strength of Man" in the second session of the three-day forum, which is based on the theme Modern Man: Slave or Sovereign.

Among today's speakers were Dr. Ralph S. Linton, Sterling Professor of Anthropology, Yale University; Dr. Chaim Weizmann, Scientist-Statecraft; Barbara Ward, Foreign Editor, The Economist of London; John Foster Dulles, U.S. delegate to the United Nations Assembly; Bidhan Chandra Roy, Gov-

ART HALLMAN

Terry Dale who will also be seen at the ACS Ball.

Formerly featured vocalist with Mart Kenney and his Western Gentlemen, Art Hallman formed his own musical group several years ago with some success. He still handles the majority of vocals for his own band, together with Terry Dale.

He is also a Victor recording artist as a vocalist, and he and his whole orchestra are regular performers over the CBC network, playing from dance spots all over the country.

It was also announced by the Committee chairman that all table arrangements and reservations would be taken care of after the ticket sale had been concluded. Highly likely, he added, that the outcome would merit perpetuation of student discussions at subsequent forums.

error Designate, United Provinces of India; Charles Morris, Associate Professor of Philosophy, University of Chicago, and Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, Professor of Applied Christianity, Union Theological Seminary, New York.

New York

Today's student discussion, presided over by William G. Alvrett, Education Editor of The New York Herald Tribune, was an unscheduled event, arising from suggestions by four students, including the McGill representatives.

Democracy in Crisis

Main problem discussed was the role of the democracies in the present world crisis. Opinions ranged from approval of universal military training, and denunciation of the latter, substituting in its place the "Constructive role which Democracy must play." Many students held that Democracy could best make headway not by pointing out the faults of communism, by "Red-baiting" but by a constructive effort to make Democracy a living, vital form of government.

In a short address to the students before their discussion, Mr. Alvrett pointed out that the student meeting was an innovation of the 16-year history of the forum. It was

WHAT PRICE HOUSING?

The purpose of what follows is to bring to the attention of the student body of this university a set of circumstances regarding the local housing situation. These, we feel, are of sufficient general interest to merit notice in a space usually devoted to more circumscribed questions.

As those readers who have followed the city press for the past two or three weeks already know, the upheaval caused by the discharge of Mr. Thomas Webber, by higher authorities in Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a Crown company, came to a head over the past week-end in Quebec Command, Canadian Legion circles. As this problem appears to be two-fold in scope, involving both the Legion and the local housing authorities, and is in both senses undoubtedly of importance to a considerable number of students who are affected by one aspect or both, a review of the circumstances as they stand at the moment seems highly pertinent.

Last Thursday night a special meeting was called by Air Force Branch (No. 113) of the Legion, at which 40 local branches were represented. The upshot of the heated session was a resolution demanding that Provincial Command ask for an investigation into the circumstances surrounding Mr. Webber's dismissal as Montreal Housing Administrator. But, prior to this decision, charges were made, both against C.M. and H. officials and against high members of Provincial Command, whose nature seems to demand serious explanation.

The charges were made by John P. Spraggett, former second-in-command to Mr. Webber, who resigned following his chief's dismissal for "glaring inefficiency"; by Alex Solomon, well known in local Legion circles, and by several others. In essence, the allegations accused C.M.

and H. officials of making a scapegoat of Mr. Webber in order to cover up the implication of others in certain shortcomings in the local housing picture. It was also charged, by Mr. Spraggett, that members of Provincial Command were guilty of collusion with C.M. and H. officials in Mr. Webber's dismissal.

Mr. Webber, whose valuable service in the field of emergency shelters has been of great assistance to many veterans, was some time ago made an honorary member of the Legion. At Thursday's meeting, it was pointed out, too, that his sympathies with government-subsidized, low-cost housing had perhaps influenced his dismissal.

Saturday, in stormy surroundings, the Provincial Command met to seek a solution to the whole problem. At this meeting tempers flared, accusations were sometimes of a most personal nature, and the whole state of corporate health of the veteran's organization was aired. The termination of the gathering saw a resolution demanding a public investigation into the Provincial Central Mortgage and Housing situation passed. This by an extremely close ballot.

That is how the question stands at the moment, it appears. In many ways it would seem that the problem of local housing has not been presented in a fully unclouded fashion, that the current "burst-up" is pregnant with possibilities. Certainly, the decent housing of Canadian citizens, particularly those who served their country without too many ifs, ands or buts, is a matter of sufficient importance that it should not be lightly tampered with by anyone. It is for this reason, above all others, that we say that perhaps for all concerned, the sooner this mystery is cleared up, the sooner more Canadians in this province will get the proper housing facilities so long discussed.—G. R.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Add: Le Jazz Hot

Dear Sir,—
Jazz reviewer Serge Sarasin, in giving a short history of guitarist Django Reinhardt's career, omitted a most important fact. It is a constant wonder to many jazz enthusiasts that Django is able to play at all, since he has three paralyzed fingers on his left hand.

Yours truly,
JOHN FALK.

Heart-felt Thanks

Dear Sir,—
Unfortunately we freshmen have no way of expressing our opinions or feelings as a body, since we are not organized among ourselves. This is the best means I can think of then, of communicating our appreciation of the welcome given us by the Freshman Reception Committee.

On first being ushered through the portals of McGill we were a very confused and dazed collection of individuals. I know for a fact that not a few of us were somewhat awestruck by the multitude of opportunities offered us, and by the grand scale on which all activities were carried on, to say nothing of the complexities of registration and schedules.

Through the haze in which we found ourselves groping about, the Freshman Reception Committee came to our rescue. They provided the girls with big sisters, who kept a parental eye and to whom we could run with our problems; they organized a host of social events to put us at our ease, and offered counsel to any harassed souls who needed it. In fact the first few weeks of the freshman's college year are hard to visualize without the Freshman Reception Program.

I like to flatter myself that I am a fairly average freshman. In that capacity, then, I think I am qualified to say that I am sure every one of my fellow freshmen will join me in heartily thanking the Freshman Reception Committee for the trouble they have taken in making us feel at home in McGill.

Yours truly,
P. D. C.

Veterans Society

Dear Sir,—
Permit me to direct a blast at the Executive of the McGill Veterans' Society for failure to enroll any members into the society this year and for complete failure to propose and publicize any plans for solving the problems of veterans, particularly on the questions of housing and grants.

With more vets on the campus this year than ever before, and with the meagre grants more inadequate than ever, the Executive of the Vets' Society, led by Frank "Silent" Common, adopts a do-nothing attitude.

No doubt the present Executive has no problems, but there are plenty of vets who have. By their attitude the Executive is being instrumental in destroying the Vets organization at McGill.

As it is apparent that the present Executive is completely bankrupt, let us elect an executive that has some ideas and some guts and let's get on with the job.

Yours truly,
GIL ROSENBERG, Med. III.

P.S. The constitution of the Society states that election of the new Executive must take place before the end of this month.

Roll Out the Barrel

To the Editor,
McGill Daily,
Dear Sir,—

For some years past I have busied myself with the political life of this University. I have indeed, along with all the rest of the Union Coffee and Discussion Group, done my utmost to advance the more noteworthy and noble causes which have presented themselves to the student body. Unfortunately, long association with all these noble types has had the effect of reducing me to total cynicism. This letter will serve as notice that in the future, noble causes and the martyrs for them, must suffer without sympathy from me.

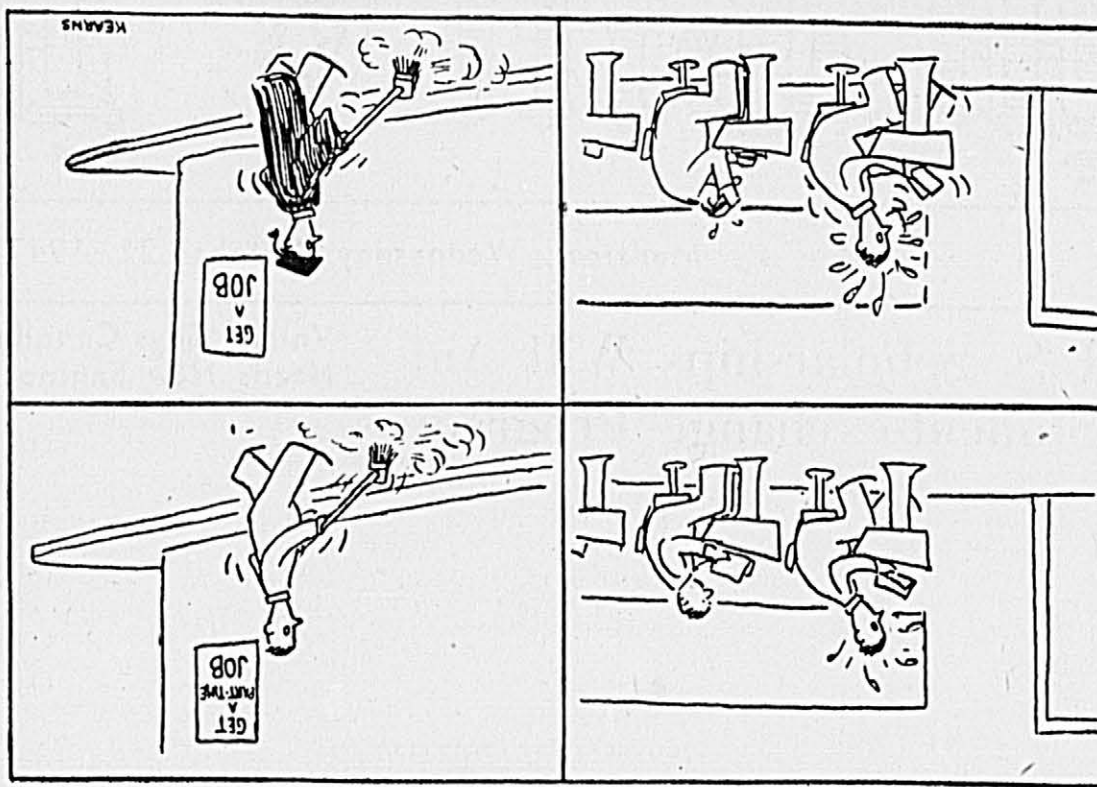

Although it is easy to abandon one's high principles, it is much more difficult to reverse habit. And by habit I am a crusader.

My faculty has an executive, known, I believe, as the A & S Undergraduate Society. So do other faculties; but they fortunately aren't bridled with our executive. In proof of this I would point out that the Engineers have a bang up smoker every year, and that the excellent Commerce faculty have several good dinners during the season. On the other hand, we Artsmen haven't had any thing of a social order since the famous "Queen's Hotel Affair" of my freshman year. (Even this affair was remarkably dry.) Instead of this, we have been subjected to a series of dances, good, bad and usually indifferent.

Now, I have nothing against dances. But I see no reason to be satisfied by affairs which involve everybody plus a few people from my faculty. If the executive individually wishes to prove that they are broad minded that is their business. As an executive I wish they would concern themselves with the problems of thirsty Artsmen.

I wish to hear no more evasions. No remarks about the number of girls on the executive will suffice. I have always been a strong "party man", and I feel that I am backed by hundreds of well wishers. In the words of an erstwhile patron saint, "Beer Drinkers of the World, Unite! You have nothing to lose but those dances. You have a keg to win."

Thirstily,
NAT WOLFE, BA. IV.

BEFORE AND AFTER

Tall Tales

by Ivan Aron

It is strange the influence the nature of a country-side has on folk-lore. The dim, sombre forests of pre-Christian Germany gave rise to the twisted dwarfs of the Neibelung legends. Scotland, a country of many rushing burns, is full of Water Kelpies, and on the Great Plains of the American Mid-West, the most notable feature is the Tornado, the Big Wind of the Prairie, which turns tall and flees in terror from the Big Wind which arises from the Liars Bench outside the General Store.

Yes, the Great American Art Form is the Tall Tale, the rubber truth stretched to the breaking point, the ring-tailed whopper which deserves a putty medal. It's a big country which needs superlatives, and the Hollywoodian who invented Super-colossal is a descendant of the men who told of the tree so-o high it took two men and a boy to see up to the top of it; the pancake so-o thin it had only one side; the man so-o tall he had to stand on a chair to shave himself; the pigs so-o scrawny they had to tie knots in their tails to keep them from getting out through the cracks between the boards in the pig-pen.

There was the fog so thick that people had to go walking in pairs, one to hold the fog apart with his hands so the other could walk through. A farmer was shingling his barn during this fog, and after finishing the barn roof he shingled six feet out onto the fog before it lifted and carried away twenty dollars worth of shingles and nails. During a drought which killed all the corn, this farmer had to let his hogs feed on pine cones and needles in the woods. When slaughtering time came and they boiled down the fat, they averaged a quart of lard and two gallons of turpentine per hog.

Yes, it's a big country, and even the heroes are big. Mike Fink the riverboatman, half alligator, half snapping turtle, and half water-snake, who was so-o fast on his feet he could jump across the Mississippi and back without touching the other side. And Wind-wagon Smith, the sailorman who put sails on a covered wagon so as to run a freight and passenger service across the plains four times faster than the best team of oxen could pull. The plan failed because the drivers kept getting seasick.

Those are the tales on which The West grew up, told on the dicky Liars Bench beneath the village oak-tree, or on the porch of the general store, and punctuated with the expectoration of brown streams of chewing tobacco.

A Great Tradition

After hearing the American debut of a French violinist, one New York critic tersely commented, "This man is, indeed, worthy of the mantle of Paganini!" It was only later he learned that Zino Francescatti actually had a direct connection with the Wizard of Genoa. Francescatti's father who was his son's only teacher, was a pupil of Camillo Sivori, who in turn, was a pupil of the great Paganini. It is this great tradition that M. Francescatti brings with him to Montreal on Thursday night when he appears at the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium.

Mr. Francescatti's program includes Beethoven's Sonata in G major, Saint Saens' Concerto in B minor, as well as music by Bach, Vivaldi, Villa-Lobos and Manuel de Falla. Arthur Balsam will be at the piano.

By ARTHUR GARMASE

I am writing this column today out of a feeling of respect; respect for the first attempt of the Daily, as far as I know, to institute a program of emphasis on the intellectual; respect for philosophy in general and respect for each of the two great systems that found themselves inextricably muddled last week in Mr. Rowe's commentary on Plato, Ethics, and Education. Careful re-reading discloses that "The Modern Thinker" leads us on a trail from misinterpretation to assumption, back to misinterpretation and on to Plato's conclusion which he so vigorously denies has relevance for us today.

He begins by disclosing that "Plato's philosophy of morals depends on his concept of man as a being with a capacity to make judgments between good and evil, and not merely a capacity but a very urgent desire or 'passion' to choose the right." Now, I respect the whole line of Christian philosophers, from Augustine to Kant, but it is worse than irrelevant to bring them in on a discussion of the great Hellenistic thinkers; it is fallacious and discloses a fatal ignorance of the importance of historical perspective. "Philosophia," the love of wisdom and The Good, can never be construed to be "passion for the right." The love of wisdom is the natural end and function of the rational animal; it is this for which he was designed, and other kinds of love do not do justice to the best that is in him. This is, in sort, all that Plato is trying to say in this connection. In his metaphysics, Mind is the formative power of the universe, and man thus has connection with the real and the eternal through his mind, which is a limited segment of Mind, or Order. The individual segment, however, to reach its full powers must be purified by dialectical education so that it can rationally control and balance off the non-rational elements that clog and dominate his nature.

And Mr. Rowe rightly sees the beauty and claim to our reverence that this glowing system (there irreverently stripped to its skeleton) makes on us. Why, then, does he caution us "to question the significance of his teachings for our contemporary scene," when all the great moderns from Santayana to Whitehead urge an immediate return to Plato's teachings if we wish to salvage the remains of our civilization?

According to Mr. Rowe, Plato's irrelevance for our day rests on the facts "that modern university seems to discourage rather than foster the dialectical struggle for truth"; that "then as today, education was considered secondary to the manipulation of power and authority; that then, as today, the educators had little real influence in the direction of human affairs." I think he meant to suggest that our problems are unique and need novel solutions; if he did, I pity his deplorable use of words, for the above mentioned phrases establish once and for all how vital Plato's criticism of his world is to our day. If he didn't mean to suggest that our problems are unique, then all his talk is superfluous and Plato automatically has the solution for our troubles, which were so akin to the troubles of the Greece of his day: a civilisation racked by warfare and losing its self confidence while bleeding itself dry in costly conflict.

The sum total of the article is this: he shows how Plato is borne out by modern psychology; he cites the great merit of the "Republic" not as an "example of utopian writing" but as a penetrating criticism; he shows that the evils of our educational system are precisely those that could and should be avoided by following Plato's system of education, and then says, let us disregard Plato and "recall the original classification of moral philosophy as a practical science"... which is exactly what Plato fought for all his life and who was the original classifier!

L.P.P. Club

Members and friends of the McGill L.P.P. Club are invited to attend the first of a series of Marxist study groups which will take place Thursday, October 23, at 1:00 o'clock in the Ping Pong room of the McGill Union.

Mr. Alec Arnoff, the club's own delegate to the Prague Youth Festival will be the guest speaker. He will explain the position of young people in European countries in their relation to the World Federation of Democratic Youth. He will also enlighten the audience on the International Union of Students in their fight for peace and a decent standard of living. There will be a question period during which Mr. Arnoff will be glad to answer questions related to his tour of Europe and to the content of his speech.

McGILL M.B.L. ENTRY

There's at least one fellow that is going to be busy these autumn and winter evenings!

The individual in question is newly-appointed basketball coach Howie Ryan who has, according to last-minute releases, entered two more McGill teams in the Senior and Junior sections of the Montreal League. These additions to mentor Ryan's care empire, place at four the number of Red and White entries in intercollegiate and city circles, and thus establish a "farm" system that can provide replacements for the senior college crew, and at the same time, lay foundations for future ball squads.

Needless to add, Coach Ryan will need a large turnout at his first practice called for this evening at the Currie Gym, but the organizational setup indicates that all who wish to play basketball this year will have an opportunity of so doing. Meanwhile, two associate coaches in the persons of Hugh Purdy and Ronnie Rutherford have been named for the coming season.

Let's take a peek behind those curtains with the lettering "1947-48 season", and look over the Senior Montreal Basketball League—the latest loop that McGill has entered.

The circuit is off to its best start in many an autumn. Boasting a six-team lineup, the M.B.L. plans to have its squads in action by November 1, when the annual "Golden Ball" Tournament gets underway. This series of exhibition encounters serves the double purpose of allowing spectators to get a pre-season glimpse at their favorites, as well as allowing the league to replenish its coffers.

Taking part in regular season play will be the championship YMHA crew, Rockland, Dawson College, and this season's entries—the Gunners, a merged YMCA—Sir George Williams quintet, and McGill. Casting a brief glance over early rosters, we find that competition will be close, and the standard of play probably higher than in recent years.

DAWSON IN, TOO

Outside of McGill, our favorites are the Dawson College crew. Maybe it's because we covered all their games last year, or possibly it's because we think that they possess an abundance of drive, good material, and an outstanding coach. Steve Armstrong, new Dawson chieftain needs no introduction to Montreal basketball followers. Long active as an outstanding player, the ex-Georgian director has progressive ideas concerning the Canadian mode of play—and he can handle men. This is attested by the fact that his former players swear by him, and not at him as is so often the case, unfortunately.

The St. Johns crew features several Americans, excellent high school material, and players from such strongholds as Windsor and Vancouver. And to fill the tall order, the Red and Blue have two 6-foot 6 centres. To date, about sixty aspirants have shown up for practice sessions.

OTHER SQUADS

Vernon and Kenny Taylor, last year's Dawson sparkplugs, have switched over to a new entry, the Gunners, formed by the 37th Regiment. The big cannon is ex-Budds mentor, Bob Sullivan, who has Freddie Bridel listed on his roster as well. The 18-year-old sensation will be in his sophomore year of league competition, and with the Taylors, forms the team's nucleus. Jim (Not "O.K.") Bill Sims and "Red" Wilson are in charge of a YMCA crew and have signed ex-McGillite Ron Bowers, Clint Robertson and the Wilson Brothers, who according to press releases, have played for Toronto Tip Tops. The championship YMHA team is rebuilding, and in addition to old standbys David "Dooddy" Blumfield, Mendy Morcin, Cy Strulovitch, and Murray Waxman, have added Junior stars Sol Tolchinsky and Jake Scop.

There's going to be a hot time in the M.B.L. this year!

McGill Reds Meet Lachine In First Game

The McGill hockey Redmen will train their sights and try to shoot the Lachine Rapides at the Lachine Arena tonight. The contest, slated to start at 8.30, will mark the initial test of the collegians under fire, which should be rather considerable from the westenders.

Coach Dave Campbell will present a makeshift lineup as all positions on the squad are still not as yet definitely established. Two goalers, four defencemen and 10 forwards will be dressing, which is one man over the intercollegiate player limit. The probability is that one less attacker will be carried.

THE P.A.S. LINE

Heading the Red punch parade are three of last season's holdovers in the persons of Reggie Sinclair, Ward Pittfield and Jimmy Atkinson. Rugged Red will occupy the face-off spot with his mates at right and left wings respectively. These three have all added quite a bit of weight over the warm months and seem headed for a banner year.

Other prominent personalities on the forward wall are Jack Millar, Cy Beigler, Dave Hackett, Warren Chippendale, Phil Henry, Johnny Vincelli and Clark Kemp. The first two need no introduction to Red puck followers, while the rest personify a lot of potential goals, with speed to burn.

The Redmen will present an extremely formidable and durable defence this year. Newcomers Mike Fisher and Sandy Sanderson, from the wide open space of the West, have given the rearguard a much needed fillip and take a back seat to no one in this department. Rounding out the stonewall corps are John Woodyatt and Gordon Gosselin, who toiled valiantly for the clan Campbell last year.

Jack Gelineau and Dick Currie will don the matressing and try to kick out all the rubber-headed their way, some of which will come probably from the blades of ex-Redmen Bob Broderick and Johnny Costigan, who are playing for the Rapides.

Indians Meet QRFU Comets In Night Tilt

It's the question mark game of the season tonight at the Stadium! The McGill Indians are playing host to the Montreal Comets, latest addition to the Q.R.F.U. What or who this team will be, is a question only "Slug" Segatore, the new entries coach, can answer.

Thus far on their early season plays the Comets collected enough points for a third place berth, but, like the Redmen, they'll be out to improve their position in the evening encounter. Coach Segatore, who at one time played for Montreal's Big Four entry, has built up quite a team to represent the Metropolitan in this year's version of the Q.R.F.U.

OUT FOR VENGEANCE

After losing their first game last Saturday at Rockland, Al Cagney's boys will be out to take vengeance on the Comets. Lead by Galloping Murray Grestex, the Indian's attack will probably consist of Dikofsky, Rodger and Bussiere, the lineup that so effectively crushed Quebec and Dawson prior to last Saturday. The forward wall lead by sticky Phil Weisberg, with Fox, Warden, Lieb, Henderson, Johnson, Walcott and Givens ought to give the Montreal boys something to worry about, as they go all out to offset Saturday's defeat.

Intra-Mural Soccer Underway at Dawson

Soccer has been given another big boost on the Dawson Campus with the formation of an Intra-Mural Soccer League. Three teams have been set up so far, using the names of countries to designate the squads. The teams operating at present are Jamaica, Trinidad, and Canada, each consisting largely of players from the country for which the team is named.

The games are played each Thursday evening at 7.00 p.m., and last for one action-packed hour. One game has already been played with Jamaica taking Trinidad into camp by a score of 4 to 1.

This league has been formed for the purpose of giving all who wish to play a chance to do so, and any new teams will be welcomed. So all who play or who like to watch the play, should turn up next Thursday at seven in order to get an exhibition of soccer that is soccer.

McGill Aggregation Attempts To Garner Tait-Mackenzie Cup

By MARVIN SHILLER

This is it. With the track faithful hoping fervently for warm, sunny weather, athletes from Western, Toronto Queen's and McGill will wend their way to Molson Stadium today to vie for the Tait-Mackenzie trophy in the 40th annual Intercollegiate track meet.

Everyone who has seen the entry lists is still amazed at the large number of contestants and also at the host of "name" runners who'll toe the mark at 1 p.m. today. With all teams out for the title in earnest, and no token forces as in previous years, competition is bound to be keen and with each man pressing the other records are bound to fall.

Starting the proceedings will be the pole vault and discuss in the field events, while on the cinder paths timber topplers will be running the high hurdles followed immediately by the century dash. Murray Galman of Toronto and Dominion pole vault champ will be hard to beat in the trip into the ozone. Kaiman has cleared 12½ feet which is going some. The discuss will see Lionel Fournier, McGill's captain, trying for a new record, while competition will come from husky Al Lenard, Fletcher and Shore.

The hundred promises to be the dash of the year as Jack Parry tries to dethrone blond Pete Robinson as intercollegiate sprint champ. These two will also hook up in the 220. The Redmen will also have dependable Hugh Munroe in these two events and speedy Hugh will surely add to the Red and White point total.

In the half Don Macfarlane will hook up with McGill's Paul Fenton and ever-improving Paul will be a tough cookie. Don will have to get home in less than 2 minutes if he wants the garlands.

The quarter will see Don Macfarlane romp to an easy victory over teammate Bill Larochelle. Both these men have shown their mettle in this event and their past performances make them top-heavy favourites to win. If Bob does not have to save himself for other events he might even set a new record.

All in all the meet should not be decided by more than ten points. Our guess is McGill 57, Toronto 50 and Western 47 with the Gaels trailing.

McGill Gets First Place By 9-6 Win

By DAVE TOWNSEND

Staging a six goal spurge in the second half, McGill's junior water-poloists came from behind to beat Nationale AC 9-6 in a rough and fast game played in the latter's pool last night. The win moved McGill into first place, over the YMCA and the Nationale teams.

Poor defence work by McGill enabled Nationale to ram four quick goals past Bob Tilden in the deep-end nets during the first quarter. Don Waller scored on a deep shot at the close of the quarter to make it 4-1.

Scoring honors were divided equally in the second period with Nationale and McGill each netting the ball twice. Forward Tanguay scored his second and third goals for Nationale, and Skip Onesti and Bill Osterman scored for McGill. Half-time score read 6-3 in favor of Nationale.

Second Half

The game opened up in the second half, with the McGill defence stopping the Nationale attack. Peter Cameron scored for the Redmen half-way through the period.

After the first few minutes of the fourth quarter, McGill's attack finally clicked with Skip Onesti scoring three times, and Jim Ross and Bill Osterman, one goal each. The last period was marred with several roughing penalties on both teams as the Nationale tried to retain their once impressive lead. Final score: 9-6 in favor of the Redmen.

The McGill senior poloists play their first game tonight in the MAAA Pool, and Coach Jimmy Rose will be watching his charges closely. The team is almost the same as last year's intercollegiate champions, and they are out to retain their title for the third successive time.

Guarding the nets will be Dave Townsend, with Art Earle and Elliot Young on the defence. Bob Mahon, Gerry Cooper and Irwin Fineberg, intact from last year, will be the forward unit.

McGill Floor Hockey Off to Bangup Start

Two games were played in the McGill Floor Hockey League last night. In a game featured by rough play, the Alkies defeated the Virgins 3-2. In the other game the Commercials, again served notice that they intend to win the championship when they defeated the Flashes 7-2. Bob Jeannotte was the high scorer in both games with 3 goals for the Commercials. The other scorers for the Commercials were Hiltzig, Jones, Sargent and Kert. For the Virgins, Sterling and Kluger put their team in the scoring column.

In the nightcap, the scorers for the Alkies were Barrett, Shaw and Torode. For the losers "Shorty" Caron and Moore did the scoring. The first minor casualty was Jim Bird with a stick in the mouth. This did not prevent him from playing a very strong game for his team.

The schedule continues on Friday when two of the power teams hook up in the first game, Comblines and Plumbers, at 5.15. The second game, Phys-Eds and Stars takes place at 6.15, immediately after the first game.

Red Swimmers In Practices This Afternoon

By MARC BALTZAN

The Big Red swim team takes to the water for the first time today with the first practice with the avowed aim of recapturing the intercollegiate title. It will be remembered that last year they lost to the Toronto Blues by one point in spite of this heartbreaker, the season can be discussed with pride. McGill defeated all local opposition to win the Gazette trophy emblematic of the district and provincial championship. Not content with this McGill also made forays into the States and engaged such American colleges as Amherst, Syracuse, and Union College of Schenectady. By the end of the season our team had competed in eleven meets, compiling a record of seven wins and four losses.

The squad was sparked by George Athens, three times intercollegiate diving champ. During the summer George added to his laurels by winning the Canadian title for the ninth time in succession, virtually clinching a place on next year's Olympic team. Another potent point winning combination was that of Jim Quayle, Jerry Cooper, Dick Fulerson and Bill Elder. These boys climaxed a season of outstanding performances by topping the collegiate relay record, a mark of seventeen years standing.

Coach Vic Curran has announced that while he has a nucleus more swimmers are needed to round out the team. It is with this purpose in mind that he has called a practice tomorrow at the Canadian Legion Pool, 1191 Mountain at 5.15. All that's necessary to try out is to appear at the pool with trunks and towel at that time.

McGill plans to have four basketball entries, so that all who desire to participate in the sport are invited to attend these sessions. All positions on the four teams are open, it is emphasized and all aspirants should attend the period this afternoon.

McGill Tennis Squad Advances In Toronto Intercollegiate Matches

Toronto — (C.U.P.) — October 21

—The big Red tennis team continued their winning ways yesterday, virtually assuring themselves of their second successive Eastern Intercollegiate Tennis Championship. They are the proud possessors of a clean slate, compiling a perfect total of fourteen victories and no defeat in two days of round-robin play. The rampaging Redmen need win only two of today's seven matches to assure their victory. Again the team was sparked by the game Bobby Duford who continued to shine in spite of a painful football injury.

Jack Spenser, last year's intercollegiate champ, started the day off right by disposing of Faguy, a U. of M. ace, in a very methodical fashion. Duford had a little more trouble, but eventually put away Cooper of Queen's 6-4, 6-4.

DOUBLES WIN

The two Sherbrooke Street stalwarts then combined forces to take on the Turner Lawrence duo from Varsity. This match produced the day's best tennis with both combos playing near perfect tennis. As is usual in such closely contested matches stamina and endurance finally determined the winner, Duford and Spenser managing to outlast the Toronto two, copping the match 7-5, 14-12.

In the other doubles bracket Leroyer and Marien were drawn with Gibson and Cooper of Queens. This match was just the opposite of the other. The McGill boys were in complete control throughout and had no trouble walking off with a 6-1, 6-2 verdict.

In the final singles contests both Leroyer and Marien ran into trouble, Leroyer defeating Anderson of Varsity 11-9, 3-6, 6-3. Marien came back after being drubbed 6-1 in the first set to best Dawes of Varsity 6-4, 6-4 in the remaining sets.

Freshies' Competition

This department is sponsoring a contest which all freshies and other co-ed undergraduates at McGill for the first time this year may enter. We would like to hear your first impressions of McGill. Candidates are to write a letter to friends or family, real or imaginary, in ecstasy or in disgust, describing their first weeks at college.

Letters are to be 350 words or less in length, about a sheet and a half typewritten, double spaced. They may be written in any mood, in English or in French, and in any style the author may choose, from Chaucer to All Capp. We ask entrants to sign their full name and year to their letters, which will be accepted until 2 p.m. on Monday, October 27.

The winning letters will be printed in this column a week from today. In addition, the writer of the best letter will receive a complimentary ticket admitting two to the R.V.C. Christmas Hop. This event, scheduled for mid-December, is one of the most enjoyable on the campus calendar of entertainments. We consider the pass we receive as Woman's Editor the most valuable gift that goes with our position. The second prize is a pair of invitations to the Daily Christmas Party. The Daily party is not second because it is less enjoyed than the R.V.C. festivities, but because no tickets are sold, invitations in general being limited to members of the staff.

Entries should be written legibly on one side of the paper, preferably typed double-space, and left in The Daily mailbox, a recognizable slot in the wall of our office in the Union basement, in an envelope addressed to the Women's Editor.

Remember the topic—your composition instructor in English 2 may have it up her sleeve, so practice up on us—the prizes, the place to leave your entries, AND the deadline, OCTOBER 27.

Social Service Needs Co-Eds As Volunteers

The Social Service Committee of the Women's Union is calling for volunteers. Coeds who have some free time to give to various types of voluntary work are urged to sign their names on the R.V.C. notice board without delay, announced the Committee's chairman, Audrey Jackson.

Though the wartime demand for volunteers has tapered off considerably, the registration has declined even more. Last year, the McGill Committee could not meet all the calls it received, through the Montreal Women's Voluntary Services, as well under half of those who offered their time at the opening of the session did regular work.

This year, like last year, hospitals, settlement houses, day nurseries and public children's libraries need voluntary aid. There will be an opportunity for some girls to do clerical jobs in the Royal Victoria Hospital clinic, and in the Neurological Institute, both conveniently near the University. The social workers at the East End Boys' Club, and at the Griffintown Settlement need aid in their work with children of all ages who come there after school for clubs, athletics, and general supervision.

The Montreal Day Nursery has asked for volunteers in the past, and for students who plan to do social work for children, the Montreal Children's Library has a branch in Park Avenue Extension where a number of McGill volunteers have given great satisfaction, helping the librarian deal with the increased number of school children who came there for books.

At times, students have been called upon to aid in public campaigns. Poppy Day is one drive for which co-eds have taken out collection boxes, and the Red Cross campaign is another.

Archers Return Victorious From Recent Trek West

by Robina Hood

When the Montreal-London train pulled out of Windsor Station last Thursday night, October 16, it carried, along with four very excited girls, their high hopes of capturing the Intercollegiate Archery championship at the first assembled archery tournament amongst Canadian Universities. This was being held at Western University on October 17.

The McGill team—Marion Wiens, Felice Arsenault, Pearl Heasley, and Dorothy Ing—was accompanied by Miss Iveagh Munro of the Physical Education Department.

They tossed through a restless night in their berths, haunted by strange dreams of split arrows, broken bows, and missing armguards and gloves, and awoke to find that they had in actual fact left the latter pieces in the chief fire warden's room at R.V.C. They finally solved that problem by doubling up on equipment.

DESTINATION
At last the train pulled into London. No sooner had the four young hopefuls set foot in the Hotel London than they discovered that they had to be at the Little Stadium in 45 minutes. By eating and changing into their "arching" outfits in 34 of an hour, our team proved itself worthy of the Age of Speed.

From 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. the quartet spent its time shooting at the assigned target; gossiping with the Western and McMaster teams; lying about in limp and prostrate attitudes; or beating out the time to the irresistible blaring of the Western band which was then practising.

THE SCORE
The results of the meet itself were announced that night at a dinner around which gathered 25 very hungry girls. In the midst of the second course, an electrician popped his head into the dining room and said, "Excuse, please, but we've got to replace a fuse." Before he was out, the whole room was plunged into darkness. For five minutes the girls tried valiantly to keep their mashed potato, green peas, and chicken from landing on the table. Every attempt did not score a bull's eye. The McGill archerettes, however, were successful in the tournament, winning it with a score of 969 points.

That night, the girls donned their red blazers and strolled down London's main thoroughfare. They went to see a movie which was entitled ironically enough, "The Last of the Redmen."

The next morning the quartet went exploring Western University, and their main impression was of the beautiful campus. After the football game that afternoon, at which the archerettes cheered for all their worth, there was hurried packing and a race to the railroad station. Not until they arrived in Montreal again early Sunday morning did the four sleepy "conquering heroines" draw a free breath.
